Almost All States on Atlantic Seaboard from Maine to Florida Are Experiencing It.

GETTING WARMER IN WEST

In New York Season's Records Are Being Broken-New England Shivers With Cold.

Washington, Feb. 7 .- Almost every state on the Atlantic seaboard from Maine to Florida today is experiencing the coldest day it has had during th winter, while the temperature in the west and northwest is growing warm-

Canton, N. Y., at S o'clock this morn ing, had a temperature that more nearly approximated the weather at the north pole than at any other place in the United States. At Canton the of-ficial thermometer of the weather bu-reau indicated 22 below zero. The cold extends far south, where tonight frost will be felt. Warmer weather is promised for tomorrow.

COLD STRIKES NEW YORK.

New York, Feb. 7.—New York city struck the minimum in winter temperatures and just about the minimum of cold weather discomfort and suffering today.

The cords for the senson were broken with the registering of a temperature of two degrees above zero at 8 a.m. The lowest point previously reached by the mercury of the official thermometer at the weather bureau was five degrees above on Jan. 5.

All of the state today was experiencing extreme cold. At Plattsburg the thermometer indicated 20 below zero; Utica 24 below; Amsterdam, 18 below, and Rochester 3 below.

ALL NEW ENGLAND SHIVERS.

Boston, Feb. 7.—All New England is shivering in the cold wave which blew down upon it yesterday from the northwest. In this city from midnight until 8 o'clock the temperature was three degrees below zero.

JURY TO INQUIRE INTO DEATH OF SWOPE RESUMES

Kansas City, Feb. 7.—After an interval of almost a month the jury called by Coroner B. H. Sewart to determine the cause of death of Col. Thomas H. Swope, resumed its sessions at Independence, Mo., today.

The six jurors all live in Independence and most of them were personally acquainted with the dead millionaire, whose death they are investigating.

It is believed that the coroner's inquest will do much to straighten out the legal tangle which has developed since the investigation of Col. Swope's death began.

If a verdict declaring death came under unnatural circumstances is returned, it is said, indictments will follow. If an opposite verdict is reached, the criminal aspect of the case will vanish and only the civil suit will be heard.

paying further tribute to the aviator in receptions and social events.
Announcing that he was anxious to appear in New Orleans without any guarantee of purse, because this city was one of the strongest French centers in the United States, Paulhan will probably undertake flights here intended to add still further to his name as an international record breaker.

The promise of a cross country run today drew thousands of spectators to the City Park track. Official announcement was made that the events would be extended until next Sunday, with the possible elimination of Thursday and Friday.

Today Paulhan anneunced that he would use a large Farman biplane and also the Bleriot machine.

TRAINMEN VOTED AGAINST ARBITRATION

Chicago, Feb. 7.—One buildred members of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen employed in yard service at the Randolph street station of the Illinois central railroad, yesterday voted to refuse the offer of arbitration made them by the company and insist that they must have a wage increase.

The complete vote of the men in all Chicago yards is expected to be in by tomorrow night and A. F. Whitney, vice president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, who is handling negotiations, last night telegraphed the chairmen and secretaries of the wage adjustment committees of the trainmen on the Brailroads involved to meet him here bext Wednesday to discuss the situation. There are over 3.000 men employed in yard service in the Chicago district and nearly all are members of one or the other of the unions.

IMMEDIATE FUTURE PLANS OF JEFFRIES

Great Falls, Mont., Feb. 7.—Sam Berger, manager for James J. Jeffries, made known here last night for the first time the immediate future plans of Jeffries, after the close of his present theatrical engagement.

"We go from here to Butte," said Berger, the east along the Northern Pacific as far as Hibbing, Minn., which will be our last stand. We show at Hibbing Sunday, Feb. 13, after which will be our last stand. We show at Hibbing Sunday, Feb. 13, after which the company will dishand and Jeffries and I will start immediately for California, reaching there Feb. 16 or 17. Soon after reaching California, Jeffries will go on a hunting trip in the mountains and train by tramping miles and miles every day over the roughest kind of country."

GOV. HUGHES MEANS WHAT HE SAYS OF RENOMINATION

renomination, in a letter made public here today.

"I have already publicly stated that I cannot under any circumstances accept a renomination," writes the governor, and I suppose that it is understood by the people of the state. Certainly it should be and I do not see how I could have been more explicit than in my statement to the newspapers.

"Of course, you and others who have been so strong in my support, should realize that there is not the slightest doubt about the matter, and that I mean exactly what I have said."

ANOTHER MURDER IN CHICAGO ITALIAN COLONY

Chicago, Feb. 7.—Another victim was added today to the long list of murders committed in the North Side Italian colony when Joseph Laverdi was shot and killed in the basement of his home. According to Mrs. Laverdi, who was a bride of a year, the victim had not had trouble with anyone and the police believe the murderers were members of the Black Hand.

GOODS IMPORTED

President Issues Proclamation Declaring That After March 31, 1910, Entitled to Minimum Rates.

today issued a proclamation under the provisions of the tariff act of Aug. 5, 1909, in which he declares that from and after March 31, 1910, all articles imported into the United States or any of its possessions, excepting the Philippine Islands and the islands of Guam and Tutuila from Germany are entitled to be admitted at the minimum rates to be admitted at the minimum rates of duty prescribed by Sec. 1, of the present tariff act.

The proclamation does not include the German colonial possessions for the reason that the department of state has not yet had sufficient time to investigate the question as to whether such colonies unduly discriminate against importations from the United States. Inasmuch as the minimum rates of the United States don't go into effect until March 31 next ample time will be afforded to demand that question.

The proclamation is identical with that published some days ago with respect to Italy and several other countries.

MINE DISASTERS.

Secy. Callbreath Declares Investigation By Federal Govt, Is Urgent.

Washington, Feb. 7 .- Pointing to each washington, Feb. 1.—Pointing to each new mine disaster as a reason why a national bureau of mines should be created, J. F. Callbreath, Jr., secretary of the American Mining congress, declared here today that an investigation of the cause of these disasters by the federal government was urgent.

"It is the state's task to inspect the mines and issue regulations that ought to be enforced." said Mr. Callbreath, "but it is surely within the function of the government to conduct the scientific research into the mysterious causes that are hurling so many men into eternity." The bill which Mr. Callbreath desires to see made into law has already passed the house. It has the endorsement of the United Mine Workers, mine owners, leading science societies, state mine inspectors and state geologists.

Mr. Callbreath said the measure would pass the senate as easily as it did the house if senators realized its importance. new mine disaster as a reason why a

"WOMEN'S COURT" AT U.S. NAVY YARD

Second One Begins by Putting Surgeon Robnett on Trial.

Beston, Mass., Feb. 7.-The second of the "women's court-martials" was opened at the Charlestown navy-yard today when Passed Asst. Surgeon Ansey Hamilton Robnett was put on trial for his alleged participation in the expulsion of Dr. Edward S. Cowles of Boston from a dance at the yard on the night of Dec. 11.

The verdict in the case of George P. Auld, who was tried last week, has been forwarded to the navy department at Washington for review.

There were two charges against Surgeon Robnett the first, "that he did ald abet Paymasier Auld in the expulsion of Dr. Cowles from the navy-yard dance Dec. II, last, Cowles being a properly invited guest and the action oeing unauthorized and unwarranted, second, that he subsequently used insulting language to Dr. Cowles over the telephone.

Like Paymaster Auld, Surgeon Robnett received a reprimand from the secretary of the navy following the first complaint of Dr. Cowles. Dr. Cowles's wife then pressed the charges to the officials in Washington and the court-martial of the two officers was ordered.

Included in the list of witnesses for the defense were Miss Dorothy Hesler of Evanston, Ill., who is engaged to be married to the young surgeon, and Paymaster Auld. Much of the same evidence presented in the trial of Auld was expected to be used in the proceedings against Robnett, and it is thought that the case will be completed within two days.

EDMUND ROSTAND'S | ARE POSTAL BANKS 'CHANTIGLEER"

The critics are unanimous that as a poem of lyric beauty "Chanticleer" is unsurpassed and many pronounce it Rostand's masterpiece. All pay tributes to the marvelous ingenuity with which the author depicts the play of human weakness in the "barnyard romance" but manifest doubt that it will prove a nopular dramatic success.

popular dramatic success.

The English and American critics fear that the delicate French flavor will be wholly lost in translation. GREAT ARTISTIC SUCCESS.

GREAT ARTISTIC SUCCESS.

The dress rehearsal of Edmund Rostand's "Canticleer" at the Porte St. Martin theater last night in the presence of a remarkable audience comprising the elite of the literary, artistic and dramatic world of Paris, as well as other European capitals, was an artistic success of the first magnitude, the exquisite verse being up to the finest traditions of Rostand's poetic genius.

The brilliancy of the first act which was preceded by a charming prologue, delivered by Jean Coquelin, preparing the audience for the atmosphere of the piece, fairly set the theater mad with enthusiasm. But the second and third acts, which were somewhat tedious, were less favorably received.

In the last act, however, enthusiasm was revived to the boiling point. There were five calls after the curtain fell, but M. Rostand himself did not appear. M. Quitry, who took the part of Chanticleer, stepped before the curtain and simply expressed his thanks.

WONDERFUL STAGING.

WONDERFUL STAGING.

WONDERFUL STAGING.

The piece was wonderfully staged and the plot thrilling. M. Guitry, Mme. Simonne LeBargy, the hen pheasant; Gallipaux, the blackbird, and Coquelin, the dog, carried off the honors.

The secret of the many delays incident to the presentation of the play is now explained by the changes made at the end of the play. The hen pheasant, after vainly trying to induce Chanticleer, whom she has enticed to the forest, to prolong the night 36 hours in their nuptials, beirays him, and he returns to the barnyard to his faithful turns to the barnyard to his faithful hens.

The critics generally consider that the brilliancy of the verse surpasses even "Cyrano," if that be possible, but the artistic note struck is so high that they doubt whether the play will be a popular success after curiosity has worn off.

It is rumored that M. Rostand himself will play the role of Chanticleer at the benefit to be given for the flood sufferers.

A UNIQUE PRODUCTION.

Rostand's Chanticleer probably is the most unique production ever presented on the stage. No human character appears in the cast. The dramatic personne are fowls, birds and animals, and, as they are necessarily as large as the men and women who enact the parts, everything which appears upon the stage is upon a corresponding scale.

the part of the hero (Guitry) is scale.

Chanticleer, the hero (Guitry) is filled with illusions about his place in the world. He imagines he is master of the sun; that the sun rises at the end of night because Chanticleer has end of Chanticleer has the country of the country of of the sun; that the sun rises at the end of night because Chanticleer has awakened and crowed. The play dispels this illusion in the heart of Chanticleer alone.

The first act opens with the sun rising on a barnyard. A mountalnous manure pile is on one side of the stage. A fence which seems immense, because it is in proportion, separates the yard from a road beyond which is a forest back ground. To the right a wooden shoe, forgotten by the farmer's wife, is of the size it would appear to the chicken, and a chair completes the scale illusion, its legs, which alone are seen, being eight yards high.

In the center of the stage with his companions of the barnyard grouped around him. Chanticleer hails the sun, whose first rays gild the scene, in a hymn full of the poet's lyric magnificence. On the manure pile perches the blackbird (Gallipaux), jealous of the cock and breaking into his noble sentiments with libes and puns after the manner of Cyrano. The dog (Jean Coquelin) is the droll moralizer of the piece. Chanticleer falls in love with a beautiful pheasant (Simonne), who is wooed by a fighting cock.

A SCENIC GEM.

CONSTITUTIONAL?

Senator Rayner Says They Are Contrary to the Fundamental Law of the Land.

A POEM OF LYRIC BEAUTY. GENERAL WELFARE CLAUSE.

To Regard It as Independent Grant of Power Would Wipe Out Reserved Rights of the States.

Washington, Feb. 7.-Admitting that he had given no consideration to merits f the postal savings bank bill, and declaring that he was not influenced by the banking interests, Senator Rayner today addressed the senate in opposition to the measure on purely constitutional reasons.

"I have not," he said, "been able to find any constitutional ground whatever for this measure. No one who has read the Constitution of the United States will contend for a moment that it comes under any of the express powers of the instrument, and the utmost that will be claimed for it. I suppose, is that under the eighteenth clause of section 8 of article 1, it is a necessary and proper law to carry into execution the delegated powers. I have searched in vain for any decision sustaining this contention. It is not a law necessary and proper to carry into execution the clause which gives Congress the power to borrow money on the credit of the United States, because this enactment does not purport to be for any such purpose." ever for this measure. No one who purpo RIGHT TO ORGANIZE BANK.

Conceding that the government has a right to organize a bank as an instrumentality of government, he contended that no such purposes were embraced in the pending legislation. He also argued against any possible contention that the proposed law was authorized by the constitutional provision regarding postofices.

Mr. Rayner took up a statement made by Mr. Burkett that authority is found offices.

Mr. Rayner took up a statement made by Mr. Burkett that authority is found for the legislation under the general welfare clause. He declared that there is no general welfare clause in the Constitution as an independent grant of power, that no text writer, no commentator, and no court has ever announced the proposition that Senator Burkett contended for.

"I know the Constitution under the last administration was in a state of collapse," continued Mr. Rayner. "Upon a number of occasions upon this floor I attempted to show how it received blow after blow until it was almost sent struggling to its grave. The predecessor of our present president, whatever else he may have been, wes not a student of the Constitution, field not care for its restrictions and did not consider himself bound by its limitations. We have an occupant of that office now, who is thoroughly familiar with the landmarks of his power, who, with his judicial temperament, not only will hold himself in equilibrium, but proposes to hold in proper poise and balance the checks and safeguards of governmental power.

GENERAL WELFARE CLAUSE.

"He has never said in his message to us under what grant of constitutional power he has proposed this important legislation. One thing I feel sure of, and that is, that he will never regard the general welfare clause of the Constitution as an independent grant of power. Such an interpretation as this would convert us into a centralized government of inherent and unlimited functions; would sweep to oblivion the reserved rights of the states; would render the enumerated powers of the charter absolutely superfluous and unnecessary; would give Congress the right to pass any legislation whatever, that, in its arbitrary discretion, or from political motives, it may determine upon, and, in my opinion, destroying the autonomy of the states and obliterating the inviolable decision of the tenth amendment, would make such a gaping wound in the heart of the Constitution that the blood that GENERAL WELFARE CLAUSE. gave it life would wither in its veins.

COLONEL ROOSEVELT BEGINS LONG MARCH

Nimule, Uganda Protectorate, Feb. 7.

—The 19 days march to Kondokoro was begun by the Smithsonian African scientific expedition today. The first camp will be at Assa river, 12 miles north of this place, if the plans of the party don't miscarry. The location of the camp site is adapted to the convenience of the explorers, but the path lies through an unpeopled district and the porters were today well burdened with food supplies.

The distance from Nimule to Gondokovich is, roughly speaking. 108 miles, and this stage of the expedition will be as severe a test of physical endurance as the party has had.

a SCENIC GEM.

The second act is the scenic gem of the piece, showing the upper branches of a blasted pine in the heart of a forest, the human sized birds perched in the branches. The owl calls the roll of the birds of the night; each, as his name is called answering and opening two luminous eyes, which shine in the semi-obscurity of the stage, green, yellow or blood red. These birds declaim the hymn of the night and afterward conspire together to rid themselves of their arch enemy, Chanticleer. With him gone, they believe the sunlight will be forever quenched and they will be masters forevermore. In the third act Chanticleer learns of the conspiracy of the night birds and fights a duel with his false friend, the game cock, skilling him despite his steel gaffs and redoubtable skill. This is the beginning of the end for Chanticleer. The treachery of his friend poisons his optimism. The hen pheasant, the prize of the combat, offers the consolation of her love in a fine outburst and then draws his head under her wing and bids him "sleep."

"And I have not crowed," he cries. The dream of his life, all his belief in his wondrous power, crumbles. So he was not the ruler of the sun. All the tenderness of the hen pheasant cannot bring back the lost lilurion. His hens do not know it. The birds of the night still believe in him. He has followers and his enemies as before. The sun still rises when he, Chanticleer, crows. If the dog doubts, he is

SURPRISE CHIEF CLERK WELLS.

John Wells, chief clerk in the office of the presiding bishop, was the recipient of a happy surprise party Saturday evening, at his home, 531 C street, when a crowd of over a score fell suddenly upon his home and took him completely by surprise. The party was made up largely of employes of the office, and it was given on the twentieth anniversary of his serving in the capacity of chief clerk. They took complete possession of the cozy residence, tastefully decorated it with carnations, and the P. B. O. girls served most delicious refreshments. The evening was delightfully spent in vocal and instrumental music, and recitals of incidents of office life. Those present were: Mrs. Maggie Bassett, Misses Lydia Willis, Irene Nichols, Zina Smith, Lilin Davis, Lucile Evans, Nell Sumsion, Hope Russell, Mary Burton, Geo. W. Willis, Geo. C. WILSON AND PAL TO PAY PENALTY

Judge Bowman Finds Both Guilty Of Dynamiting Hotel Utah.

TO BE SENTENCED TOMORROW

Delaney Wanted Case Reopened, but Court Denied Motion-Testimony Is Reviewed.

This morning Judge J. M. Bowman of the criminal division of the city court rendered his decision in the case of the State vs. Fred Wilson and John Delaney, charged with malicious mischief, by attempting to blow up the works of the Utah Hotel on Dec. 29. The case has dragged for more than two weeks and will not be finally concluded until Tuesday morning, when sentence will be pronounced.

In rendering his decision this morning Judge Bowman said in part:

Judge Bowman said in part:

"In this case there are certain features that are not yet clear to me. Some portions of the testimony have been unsatisfactory. I believe that both Wilson and Delaney are or were implicated in the blowing up of that job. Wilson lays the blame on Delaney and Delaney accuses Wilson. Delaney says that Wilson set the alarm on the night of the explosion and then said he guessed that would satisfy them." Wilson declares that Delaney did not come back to the room until 6:30 after the explosion and admitted that he had a pal in the job who had a yellow streak and that he had to use a gun on the man. I don't think either one told all he knew about the matter and I am not satisfied, but I shall find both defendants guilty as charged."

Delaney insisted that the case be reopened, but his motion was denied by the court. Wilson took the statutory time for sentence and the matter was continued until Tuesday morning, at which time the accused will learn how long they will have to spend in the county jail.

But Little Change in Temperature However, Is Predicted for Tonight, strung along the Pacific coast, and pointing this way, the weather office predicts fair weather for this vicinity onight and Tuesday, with little change in temperature, if any. There is a cold wave sweeping through the north and east, and Boston is "catching it," with 2 degrees below zero. The duration of daylight has increased 1 hour and 12 daylight has increased 1 hour and 12 minutes—51 minutes in the evening and 21 in the morning, the mornings being now appreciably longer.

The barometric pressure is above normal over the entire country. Areas of relatively high pressure lie central over West Virginia and over Wyoming and southern Idaho; while centers of relatively low pressure areas lie over the extreme northeast, northwest, and southwest. Light precipitation was reported in Texas, and at San Francisco; elsewhere, it has been fair. The tem peratures are below the seasonal average everywhere, except in the Upper Missessippi valley and California.

VETERAN SERIOUSLY ILL.

Severe Attack of Pneumonia.

Patrolman Emil Johnson Victim of

Emil Johnson, one of the most popular and painstaking members of the police department, is dangerously ill at his home, 741 Fifth East with an acute attack of pneumonia Patroiman John-son was taken ill about a week ago and since that time his condition has been since that time his condition has been growing worse. It was reported this morning that he was delirious and in a very precarious state. Everything possible is being done for him and he still has chances for recovery.

Mr. Johnson has been a member of the police department for several years. He saw duty on the firing line in the Philippines with the Utah boys and acquitted himself with honor. Returning from the Philippines he secured a position of patrolman on the police department and has figured in many important cases in which he was the arresting officer of dangerous crooks.

FLUSH ONE DAY BROKE NEXT

Last Friday night, William A. Howe was arrested by the police for drunk-enness and taken to headquarters. When searched there was some amaze-ment on the part of the arresting of ficer to find that Howe had on him $585.20. On Saturday morning he was $58.20. On Saturday morning he was released upon furnishing $5 bail. Sunday night Howe was again taken into custody and his condition of intoxication was even worse than when arrested on Friday. He was searched thoroughly but all the police could find on him was $5.80. He was too drunk to explain what had become of all his money.
